JUNIOR HIGH PRESENTS PLAY

The Old Rochester Regional Junior High Dramatic Club presented "The Devil and Daniel Webster", the second production of the school year.

In keeping with junior high interest and ability, Mrs. Constance Keavy, member of the English department, dramatized the story for the group.

Complete with a top hat and a cape which he frequently flourished, David Ellis played the Devil, or Mr. Scratch, who bought the soul of a poor farmer, Jabaz Stone, portrayed by Alan Apperson. To save his soul from the Devil, Jabas prevailed upon the most famous lawyer of the time, Daniel Webster, portrayed by Michael Collyer, to help him keep his soul.

In the final scene, Daniel argued his greatest case to a jury of men from the grave. To the Devil's chagrin, the judge, Philip Cusick, allowed Daniel to argue his most important point, that everyone makes mistakes. Because the infamous men on the jury had all made mistakes, they understood Jabaz's plight and acquitted him.

COLORED SLIDES SEEN AT CLUB

A lecture and colored slides showing the restoration of the Benjamin Fearing Tavern in Wareham were presented by Mrs. Einar Evenson, a member of The Wareham Historical Society, at the March meeting of the Rochester Woman's Club. The house was originally erected in 1709 and lived in by Isaac Bump, builder, and was later acquired by the Benjamin Fearing family who operated it as an inn for a period of time. Members of the Fearing family occupied the house until about twenty years ago. It was also the site of the first post office in Wareham and early town meetings were held there. Mrs. Evenson gave an interesting history of the house up until 1960 when restoration was started by the Society. She noted that Isaac Bump built several other houses of excellent construction which are still standing, among these the Lincoln House on Lincoln's Hill, 1710, formerly owned by John Bump and later the home of J. Minor Lincoln and family, and the house on Fearing Hill which was lived in by John Fearing Esquire who was commissioned Justice of the Peace by His Majesty, King George II.

Mrs. Evenson's first slide was of the house before any work was done and from then on the various phases of the restoration of the exterior and interior were shown. As the work progressed, many interesting things were discovered by the workmen. The oldest part of the house is in the center and composed of the tap and public room. Later the front part was added and the roof raised. An ell was a still later addition. Fireplaces were shown before and after. Some of them had been rebuilt several times to suit the family. In dismantling, items of old jewelry and a baby shoe, etc., were found and have been preserved.

Area people have given and loaned articles and furniture in keeping with the era of the house. Among these interesting things are a very old cradle, ironstone dishes, a table, wooden mixing or salad bowl, flour sifter, a very old bottle display collected by Frances LeBaron as a boy in back of Hell's Blazes on Route 28 and a lovely collection of old pewter from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. Appropriate furniture and other items have been loaned by the Museum also. The Wareham Monday Club has taken over the responsibility of restoring one room in the old house. Further donations of articles of a colonial nature would be greatly appreciated by the Society from people who would care to give or loan them. Membership is only $1. per year.

Much of the actual work on the Fearing Tavern was done by members of the Wareham Historical Society as the slides show, not only on the house, but on the landscaping. The end result of all this hard work and in addition studious delving into old documents and historical accounts must be very rewarding to all those who gave of their time as they have brought back to life an authentic old New England house. The final slides were of the open house held at Christmas time showing the finished exterior and lower floor rooms restored to their original simplicity and charm.

Mrs. Evenson also showed slides of other interesting sites in the area and many of the very old homes. Among those shown was the historic Thatcher House in Wareham, built in the early 1700's as the parsonage of the First Congregational Church in Wareham and now the property of the Wareham Historical Society. It is planned to move it to a new site near the Benjamin Fearing Tavern. It was built by the Reverend Roland Thatcher himself in 1734 and is on Main Street near the intersection with Route 28. It is a gift to the Society by James T. and Elizabeth S. Dunn, present owners.

Mrs. Ward Benner, a member of the Rochester Woman's Club, also presented colored movies of the restoration of the Fearing Tavern. Mrs. Benner, a member of the Society and also a
